

Liana Sakelliou

LIANA SAKELLIU was born in Athens, Greece. She holds degrees in English from The University of Athens, Edinburgh, Essex, and The Pennsylvania State University. She is currently a Professor of American Literature and Creative Writing at The University of Athens. Her poems, scholarly articles, book reviews, and translations have been published in Greece and the U.S.A. She received the Fulbright Award for the Arts in 1992, the Fulbright Award for Scholarship in 2000, the Stanley J. Seeger Research Fellowship in 2001, and the West Dean Grant in 2009.

Her publications include three collections of poetry and ten books of criticism and translation. Since 1996 she has been teaching creative writing at the English Department The University of Athens and has been editing the annual periodical a-formes that contains the students' poems and short stories.